Please join us for our upcoming California Boating and Waterways Commission tour and meeting. In California, the recreational boating season extends beyond summer, and it is important for the public to learn how the Division of Boating and Waterways (DBW) continues to promote safe and responsible access to California's waterways. Working with our constituents is key to implementing successful programs.

At next month's meeting, DBW will provide commissioners with updates on the following programs: Abandoned Watercraft Abatement, Boating Safety Enforcement Equipment Grants, Aquatic Invasive Plant Control, Quagga/Zebra Grants, and the Boating Safety and Environmental Awareness Multimedia Campaign. The public and commissioners will tour locations and programs supported by DBW in Alameda and Marin counties, such as the Berkeley Marina and Encinal Boat Ramp.

The commission tour and meeting are open to the public. The meeting is also viewable online. For further information, please visit parks.ca.gov/commissions and select California Boating and Waterways Commission - to discover details as they are announced.
